Stacks May Be Closed

Stealing, Mutilation of Books Still Plagues MSU Library

By JIM KOLSTAD

If the present situation of the stealing and mutilation of books and periodicals continues at the library a recommendation will be made to close the stacks, Miss Kathleen Campbell, head librarian, said Tuesday.

Before the addition to the library was made, the library had a closed stacks system. After remodeling the building and completing the annex in 1956, the open stacks plan was initiated.

An inventory of the library was taken and between 1956 and 1958, 500 books were missing in literature alone. Books known to be missing between 1958 and 1959 number 300, Miss Campbell said. Between July 1 and Dec. 31 of 1959 approximately $1,000 was spent for the replacement of periodicals for binding.

The following are some Idaho students' suggestions to curb the problem. These suggestions were taken from a library publication at the University of Idaho which has a similar problem.

1. Use a checker at the exits to examine all books leaving the building. This idea is being practiced presently at the MSU library.

2. Levy a severe penalty against those students caught stealing or mutilating books or periodicals. Some recommend that the punishment to automatic expulsion and/or a $50 fine.

3. Have a dormitory director search student rooms for library books that are missing.

4. The library should hire student proctors to walk through the building and watch for students mutilating books.

5. Threaten to close the library for two weeks unless all books are returned.

A display is now being shown on the main floor of the library concerning the mutilation of books.

Counsel and Guidance Institute Will Be Offered This Summer

The U. S. Office of Education will sponsor a National Defense Counseling and Guidance Institute at the University this summer, MSU President H. K. Newburn announced.

Dr. Robert E. Gorman, director of the Counseling and Placement Center, will direct the institute, which will be in session from June 13 through Aug. 19.

The institute will accept 20 applicants who are engaged in counseling in high schools or who are preparing to enter the counseling field, according to Dr. Gorman.

Public school personnel attending will receive $75 per week, plus $15 for each dependent. Private school enrollees may attend without charge but receive no stipends.

MSU is one of 84 selected from 165 colleges to conduct summer institutes in counseling and guidance under authorization of the National Defense Education Act.

Last summer, MSU conducted one of 50 National Defense Counseling and Guidance Institutes attended by 2,210 counselors. Next summer's institutes will give preference to persons who did not attend last summer, Dr. Gorman said.

Title Fight at U Fieldhouse Hinges on TV Officials' OK

Fight manager Marv Jensen and representatives of the Intermountain Boxing Club looked over the University Fieldhouse Monday night as a possible site for Gene Fullmer's middle-weight title bout, Robert T. Pantzer, executive vice president of the University said yesterday.

Pantzer said the representatives thought the Fieldhouse was very well suited for the match but the decision would depend greatly upon the comments the television officials made regarding technical broadcasting problems involved.

The group was in Bozeman Sunday where they looked over Montana State's fieldhouse. Both Missoula and Bozeman have offered to stage the bout. The probable sites for the fight have been narrowed down to Bozeman, Missoula, Denver, Salt Lake City and Logan, Utah.

Pantzer said the official decision would be released in about a week or 10 days.

The champion will fight either Joey Giardello or Carmen Basilio.

The New York State Athletic Commission Monday barred Basilio's co-managers—Johnny DeJohn and Joe Netto—for life from New York rings and fined Syracuse matchmaker-promoter Norman Rothschild $2,000 for making payments to an undercover (unlicensed) manager.

All three admitted at an inquiry that they had made payments to Gabe Genovese, who was convicted last June of being the undercover manager of lightweight Ludwig Lightburn, of British Honduras.

Hike to Take Effect September 1

Board of Regents Raises University Dormitory Fees

Room and board rates at Montana State University were raised yesterday by the ex-officio State Board of Regents. The increase will be effective Sept. 1, 1960.

Board rates will jump from $448 per academic year to $461, an increase of five cents a day, from $1.90 to $1.95. Double or triple rooms will be increased by $5 to $65 a quarter. Single room rates will go from $79 to $86 per quarter.

University Pres. Harry K. Newburn told the board the new rates compared favorably with board and room charges in other colleges and universities in the Northwest.

According to figures received from President Newburn's office, the last raise in board rates at the University was April 8, 1957, from $1.75 to $1.90 per day. This time, the jump was a 2.6 per cent increase.

The last increase in room rates was Dec. 10, 1956, the president's office reported. Double rooms were raised from $55 to 60, and the fee for single rooms rose from $72 to $79 per quarter.

The regents also gave President Newburn permission to remove three houses at the site of the proposed new law school. It will be built on the corner of Maurice and Eddy Ave. opposite the music and health center buildings. The new law school will cost $435,000. Work will start this summer.

The regents asked the State Board of Examiners to deposit the sale proceeds of the houses, if they are sold, in building fee accounts of the University.

The Board of Education is meeting in Helena.

Veteran Dividends Go Up Next Year on Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Veterans were assured higher cash dividend payments on their GI life insurance policies.

The increase probably will be about 4 per cent in 1961. A VA official said the payments will total about 10 million dollars.

The veterans who hold NSLI policies are scheduled to receive dividends averaging $50 this year. The boost is expected to raise the average dividend to about $52 in 1961. The dividends result from an increase in the rate of interest on Treasury securities held by the two insurance "trust funds."

T-Board Suggests Newburn Speak To Student Body

Traditions Board Chairman Ron Simon suggested last night that President Harry K. Newburn speak to the students once a quarter on the "State of the University," to inform the students what changes are being made on campus and why.

Simon said Robert T. Pantzer, executive vice president of the University said he would be willing to support two convocations a month if the programs were well planned.

A question-and-answer session was suggested, in which President Newburn would speak. Simon said he would look into the situation with Mr. Pantzer.

Simon said Mr. Pantzer was not in favor of renaming the buildings on campus in memory of persons widely-known in a certain department or school. The idea was recently proposed by Ralph Bloomenfeld, a junior from New York City.

SOMEBODY UP THERE

UDINE, Italy (UPI)—It was his birthday and Giuseppe Jussig toasted the sky with a glass of grappa, a powerful brew made from the skin and stalks of grapes.

"Up there they have forgotten about me," he said, repeating the words he first spoke four years ago—on his 100th birthday.

CENTRAL BOARD TO MEET IN LIBERAL ARTS BUILDING

Central Board will meet tonight in LA103 instead of in the Lodge, according to ASMSU Pres. Ed Risse. Other activities in the Lodge made the change necessary, he said.

Reports will be given by Publications Committee, Public Relations Committee, Student-Faculty Social Standards Committee and the Student-Faculty Student Union Committee.

Under old business, Risse said, the Sentinel contract and compulsory ROTC will be discussed. New business will include the all-school show in the spring.

TV Students Plan First Production As Experimental

"Varsity Album," a television show now being produced by the University TV Workshop, will be broadcast from the MSU-TV studios over KMSO-TV tomorrow night at 7:30

Dr. Erling S. Jorgensen, director of the radio and TV studios said yesterday this will be the first time a television production has been broadcast live from the University studios. The studios were opened in April, 1959.

"If the show proves to be a success," Jorgensen said, "we will eventually try to produce at least one show a week."

The cast of the 15-minute program will include the Coquettes, directed by Phyllis Eide; Diana Riddle, soloist; Terry Cooper's combo; the Theta Guys and Chuck Elkington, South American folk singer.

The experiment will be entirely controlled by students of the Workshop, Jorgensen said. This includes makeup, script writing, stage craft, direction and operation of the TV cameras.

Premier Debre Asks French Assembly To Back De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI)—Premier Michel Debre asked the Assembly to give President Charles De Gaulle's government 12 months of semidictatorial rule to crush extremist plotting and to bring peace to war-ravaged Algeria.

BULLETIN

The French National Assembly without a murmur handed over its authority to De Gaulle and his government today. The deputies voted 441 to 75 to give him the power to rule. The only objection came from a handful of Communists and left wingers.

Debre said French courts will give the government the authority to rule by ordinance, without first getting parliamentary approval.

Debre said French courts will crack down on the leaders of the insurrection and their helpers on both sides of the Mediterranean.

"The riots, the barricades, have been smashed. But we must make sure there will be no repetition of these vents in the future."

The Premier firmly assured the Assembly that there will be no "attempt" to restrict democratic freedoms.

POWER SAYS DEFENCE WEAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Thomas S. Power, head of the Strategic Air Command, bluntly told Senate investigators that U.S. defense plans are inadequate.

He urged Congress to add funds to President Eisenhower's budget to keep "the highest possible percentage" of SAC bombers airborne at all times.

He held to his grim warning that unless steps are taken the time will come when 300 Soviet missiles could knock out the U.S. striking force in 30 minutes.

MSU and UND

From The Hungry Horse News

A study in contrasts between adjoining states can be made in the attitudes toward universities and colleges in Montana and North Dakota. Each state has a university, a state college and colleges of education. Both states have about the same number of people.

January issue of the University of North Dakota "Alumni Review" has a report that $1,250,000 in gifts was received by the University of North Dakota during 1959. We doubt that Montana State University received $100,000 from non-governmental sources.

Being built at the University of North Dakota is a new library from donation of $1,000,000 by a graduate. We believe this was a 1958 donation. A Grand Forks physician—or his estate—recently provided $240,000 to be used for the teaching of foreign languages.

The estate of J. F. T. O'Connor, Los Angeles attorney, is giving $250,000 providing that the gift be matched by the school. It will.

December saw a graduate of the class of 1908 send $19,000 in securities to the UND Development Fund. A graduate of the class of 1906 sent $18,000 in common stock, and an alumnus of 1908 sent diamonds valued at $7,000. More than 1,000 alumni contributed more than $66,000 in 1959, according to the January issue of the North Dakota "Alumni Review."

Montana's "Alumni News" also comes to the Hungry Horse News office. We note that there were federal grants for the new health science building, and making a page headline was $2,000 from the Sears-Roebuck Foundation, an outstanding fund. Of interest to local readers is the announcement of the $2,000 award made by Walter H. McLeod, Jr., former MSU student and Kalispell civic leader, who is now regional director for the Sears-Roebuck Foundation in Minneapolis.

'Endowment Foundation Notes' on page 24 of the MSU "Alumni News" talks of substantial contributions, but no amounts were listed. A man who knows the problems is the new vice president of the Endowment Foundation, Attorney D. Gordon Rognlien, Kalispell.

The University of North Dakota is about the same size as Montana State University. North Dakota's U is on the east edge of the state, and Montana's on the west. Missoula and Grand Forks are similar in size.

We know of some major differences in addition to UND being on the flat Red River Valley and MSU in the Rockies.

North Dakota's U had one president for more than 20 years. Dr. John C. West was the most able administrator we've ever known. He was always on top of a situation. His thinking and comment had some of the Abraham Lincoln quality. He didn't get excited, and he could puncture faculty and student excitement with an apt remark. He was North Dakota's president during the difficult years of the depression and the war.

The new UND president, Dr. George W. Starcher seems to be a wise man, and J. Lloyd Stone, the alumni relations director, is outstanding and a gentleman.

North Dakota's campus outshines Montana for new buildings, landscaping and architectural planning. Unfortunately they don't have a football team either.

In the meantime, one can start counting fingers to determine the number of presidents Montana State University has had during comparable years. The McFarland controversy is still fresh, and so is the publicity build-up of slinging mashed potatoes . . . Fortunately we are hearing less about the instructors who seem to thrive on controversy.

It would be so easy to blame Montana State University for the stumbling pattern the school seems to have.

What we forget is that each and every citizen of Montana is in effect a stockholder in that university, and also in Montana State College and the colleges of education.

It would seem that as stockholders we haven't been sufficiently concerned about our interests for the future. One should think of a state university in such terms.

Kudos to the Grizzlies

Last Thursday the Kaimin said that last night's basketball game with the State College would have all the drawing power of a "Saturday afternoon lecture on ancient English drama." Five thousand ardent fans proved us wrong and we are pleased to admit it as the Grizzlies played their finest game of the season before a crowd that never lost its enthusiasm.

We only wish that a few University and College students could have let mature judgment rule their actions instead of beginning a fight on the floor of the Field House after the game.

Bar Association Thanks Sullivan With Resolution

A resolution of commendation and thanks honoring Robert E. Sullivan, dean of the law school, was passed at a recent meeting of the Montana Bar Association in Helena.

The resolution, of which copies were sent to Governor J. Hugo Aronson, President H. K. Newburn, and Sullivan, said that the association "has been aware of the diligence, perseverance and zeal of Mr. Sullivan." It cited him for contributions made to both young lawyers and older practitioners of law.

Mr. Sullivan, a native of Helena, attended law school at the University of Notre Dame and was on the faculty there for seven years. He became dean of the MSU law school in 1954.

Mars Shot May Follow Soviet Tests in Pacific By UPI

Recent missile tests in the central Pacific could possibly mean the Russians will beat America to Mars by at least two years.

A top Russian scientist said in advance of the tests that success of the program could make a shot at Mars possible this year. The Soviet news agency, Tass, says the missiles they test-fired worked so well that the Soviets have been able to complete the Pacific tests 15 days ahead of schedule.

The U.S. timetable has no provision for a planetary probe before 1962. The U.S. does not hope to send big payloads to Mars or Venus until the Saturn rocket is perfected.

President Eisenhower has said he will ask Congress for more money to speed up the Saturn program. However, the first three-stage flight test is several years away.

Home Economics Majors Accepted Into Honorary

Beta Epsilon, home economics honorary, received three new members at the Home Economics Club Foreign Luncheon.

Lorinda Smith, a senior from Butte, Joan Elder, a junior from Mullan, Idaho and Helen Trippet, a junior from Kalispell, were elected to membership.

Beta Epsilon requires that its members maintain a 3.0 average in home economics courses and a University over-all average of 2.5. They must be active in the Home Economics Club.

Carol Spaulding, a sophomore from Portland, Cecile Laqua, a sophomore from Hanks, North Dakota and Miss Smith will go to Bozeman Feb. 4-5 to observe the Montana State College home economics department and home living center.

The Butte-bound hockey players are Jerry Sinclair, Jim Koshelek, Jack McCaulley, Cam McCallum, Al Craig, Ed Sibbald, Wally McNeill, Tom Bullock, Marvin Tiller and Bob Elliott. The members of the team are selling reserved seat tickets to the Butte contest.

This year Central Board has allotted $516 for the hockey team which will be used for traveling expenses and new hockey sticks, Sinclair said. ASMSU President Ed Risse and Business Manager Howard Hansen will ask the Student Faculty Athletic Committee to include the bowling and hockey teams in the 1960-61 athletic budget. This was a recommendation from the Budget and Finance Committee which was approved by Central Board.

The University hockey team will play the University of British Columbia, Montana State College and possibly a Utah team.

Bookstore Investigation Urged By U of Utah Student Senate

The Student Senate of the University of Utah is acting as a source of public opinion to build up pressure on the University administration, to conduct a thorough investigation of the student bookstore.

A statement calling for abolition of fraternity and sorority charter provisions, which discriminate on the basis of race or religion, was adopted by the Oregon State Board of Higher Education. A story in the Oregon State College Daily Barometer went on to say that the board deemed discrimination altogether inconsistent with the principles on which American public education was founded.

The board warned of possible action against Greek letter societies if they do not remove the provisions.

Colorado State College has offered a five-hour course with no credit being given except the students' own sense of accomplishment.

The course is reading improvement and is in its fifth quarter at CSC. Students listen to lectures, view movies and discuss reading and study problems. They also spend an hour doing lab work to give special attention to their particular problems.

The Pocatello, Idaho chapter of the American Association of University Professors has presented a resolution to the Dean of Idaho State College calling for the entire faculty to vote on whether or not ROTC should be voluntary.

One of the faculty members who presented the problem to the AAUP said his main reason for wanting voluntary ROTC is that it interferes with many of the science curriculums. He contended that freshman science majors should be offered more basic subjects and that ROTC uses time that could be spent better on sciences or non-technical electives.

The resolution will be presented at a general faculty meeting in February. It will be voted upon and if the vote is affirmative, the college president will be faced by a petition from the entire faculty to make ROTC voluntary.

The head of the ROTC department at Idaho State said that the official position of the Army is that mandatory ROTC is preferred over the voluntary program. He added, however, that it was up to the administration to decide if the program is to be continued and on what basis.

The Idaho State College Bengal also pointed out the school is losing because it does not get any financial assistance from the government. ISC has to furnish the military department classrooms, office space and equipment, but gets no reimbursement from the federal government.
